

European Commission's 2025 Work Plan

12 February 2025

The European Commission has released its 2025 Work Plan, with simplification as a central theme. The aim is to reduce regulatory complexity, improve efficiency, and create a business-friendly environment that fosters innovation and competitiveness.

Brussels, 12th of February 2025 – The European Commission has released its 2025 Work Plan, with simplification as a central theme. The aim is to reduce regulatory complexity, improve efficiency, and create a business-friendly environment that fosters innovation and competitiveness.

This initiative is particularly relevant as industries across Europe seek to adapt to evolving regulations while maintaining growth. Simplification will mean a more efficient and transparent system that supports responsible business practices without unnecessary bureaucracy.

The 2025 Work Plan also highlights the European Commission's broader ambitions to enhance industrial competitiveness, drive digital transformation, and promote sustainable economic growth. These objectives align with EDANA's mission to support the nonwovens sector in advancing innovation and sustainability while ensuring regulatory clarity.

